SOLDIERS TO VOTE.

We publish to-day on our first page, the Soldier's Supplemental Voting Law, which provides that soldiers may vote at township and municipal elections.

In accordance with the provisions of this "Act," the soldiers of the 17th Regiment from this city, have been supplied with tickets, and will vote at the coming election.

While the Union men of this city should be encouraged by the fact, they should only be encouraged to make every exertion to insure the success of the Union ticket. While we are glad to see the right of suffrage extended to the soldiers, and no one deserves it more than they, yet, they have done quite enough for us in guarding and defending us. If we cannot overthrow the outrageous rule to which this city is at present subjected without the soldiers assistance, we hardly deserve the deliverance. Let every effort be made to carry the city for the Union ticket by the home vote.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

There is no branch of the administration of the affairs of the city which can safely be entrusted to the present incumbents, or to men of like opinions. The most satisfactory thing to which this tax-ridden city can point is its schools—organized upon the basis of the Union School system so generally adopted in all the larger towns of this State. Thus organized our schools have been so conducted as to extend to all, the benefits of a liberal education, so that scholars graduating from our High School have been qualified for practical business, and almost every station in life; yet we have it upon good authority that this system has been assailed in some of its most important features by members of the School Board, and that the continuance of the High School Department and the office of Superintendent is at present held by the slight tenure of a tie vote in that body, and only awaits the accession to the Board of another member alike unsound upon this question to be swept away entirely. Let those who have an interest in this matter look to it that they be not deprived of this liberal feature of our educational system, and they, if they can afford it, be compelled to send their children from the parental roof to receive the education which an illiberal policy has denied them here.

Which heads our columns to-day we believe to be a good one, and it is an object for any citizen to spend a day in securing its triumph on Monday next.

See to it that all infirm persons are provided with accommodations for getting to the polls, and that no indifferent ones stay at home.

Do not be satisfied with a small majority. Let the result be so decisive in our favor as to discourage all attempts to set it aside next fall.

Headquarters at Circleville.

The office of Provost Marshal of this (Twelfth) District will be removed from Chillicothe to Circleville on the 7th of April.

The Rebellion as it is.

Is the title of a new Map just published by H. H. Lloyd & Co., and for sale by A. Breneman. It has an outline enclosing the "dark and bloody ground" now occupied by the rebellion. If any one wishes to know how the Confederacy is being driven into its last corner, let them purchase a copy of this map. Price 50 cents.

Still More Clothing.—It will be difficult not to take some thought wherewithal we shall be clothed if we pass the shops of our clothing merchants or read their advertisements. See extensive stock of Isaac Levy just received.

REMOVAL.—Adolph Aaron has removed his Clothing and Jewelry Store to the room formerly occupied by P. Busing in the Tallmadge Block. Look for his advertisement next week.

Jacob Block has received his stock of Ready-Made Clothing for the Spring trade, and continues to manufacture clothing to order at his old stand, adjoining the entrance to the Tallmadge House.

We are pleased to see Col. A. W. Eliot of the 12th Ohio, in town looking well.

The bill placing $1,000,000 at the disposal of the Governor, for repelling invasion, and suppressing insurrection, has passed both branches of the Legislature.

CAPTAIN WILLIAMS' WHALING VOYAGE.

An advertisement in to-day's Gazette, it will be seen that our citizens are to be favored with this extraordinary representation of a Whaling voyage. There is, we are assured from high authority, no humbug about it. The boat scenes are natural and highly exciting, and one who witnessed the performance of Capt. Williams says that "he became so engrossed and carried away with the excitement that he involuntarily rose to his feet, seeming for the moment, in the very midst of the men, and could hardly realize that he was not looking upon the big sperm whale, as he lashed the ocean, and spouted the red current high into the air in his last expiring agonies."

Rev. Duncan Kennedy, D. D., of Troy, says of this entertainment:

“Everything that takes place during the chase of the whale, whether the effort to capture him be successful or otherwise, is represented as the very life. You almost forget that it is a mere representation, and the illusion becomes at times so complete, that you fancy yourself an actor in the exciting scene. Aside from the character of Capt. Williams, which is a full guarantee of the truth of all he says, you have a sort of intuitive conviction—how inspired I can hardly tell—that everything in the exhibition is true to nature. Persons are frequently present who have visited the different places represented on the canvas, and none have ever detected inaccuracies in the delineations. I have myself seen the ocean in all its varied moods of storm and calm, when bathed in light and enshrouded in darkness, and I know that in this respect, the picture is true to the original. The most opposite emotions are excited by the different events and incidents of the voyage. You are at one time convulsed with laughter, at another agitated with fear, and again subdued with sorrow. The burial of little Willie is one of the most tender and touching scenes it is possible to contemplate. That alone is worth all the time and expense of a visit. It is a sight that does the heart good.”
